

International Technical Assistance Program

Procurement Capacity Building Support

The CoE Acquisition Practice established the International Technical Assistance Program (ITAP) to support international development programs across the federal government. Our approach identifies highly-qualified experts that employ best practices in public procurement and technology. Our team provides specialized training and consultations to support federal agency initiatives in global procurement capacity building programs.

BENEFITS

- Leverage GSA procurement and technology experts to improve the international procurement environment and promote U.S. technology modernization best practices
- Create economic opportunity for U.S. businesses through the promotion of ethical procurement standards and laws
- Serve as a resource for transparency in government procurement federal agencies and US businesses, by supporting U.S. Government sponsored training consultations in the US and other countries for foreign delegations

HOW CoE CAN HELP YOUR TEAM

Below are a few examples of how CoE can support partner agencies. For current supported initiatives please reach out to CoE.

Initiatives	Use Cases
Information and Communications Technology	Provide facilitated workshops that focus on the intersection between public procurement and the adoption of information technology. Promote the use and application of technologies such as Artificial Intelligence, Cloud and Data Analytics, and Infrastructure Optimization.
Support Trade and U.S. Competition Initiatives	Promote a competitive business environment through the use of best value trade-off evaluation methodology and modular procurements.
Global Climate Change Initiatives	Provide multiple training sessions on the vital role of sustainability and public procurement. Promote clean energy revolution through the adoption of green procurement best practices.
Anti-Corruption/Democracy and Governance/Civil Society Strengthening	Public procurement is a cornerstone to transparency and anti-corruption initiatives. The sharing of best practices in public procurement that work to mitigate corruption and increase transparency.

CASE STUDY

The CoE provides procurement and technology expertise to the Department of Commerce’s Commercial Law Development Program (CLDP) to support its global procurement capacity building programs through participation in training, workshops, and consultations.

Our cross functional teams of subject matter experts will ensure you get the technical and acquisition support your effort needs to succeed!

Learn more by emailing us at connectcoe@gsa.gov

1800 F Street NW, Washington, DC 20405

coe.gsa.gov

connectcoe@gsa.gov

@GSACoE, #GSACoE